They Give the Government Much

Concern. Over Fourteen Hundred Discharged Last Year.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—In the new army regulations it is proposed to adopt generally the rule of punishing men who are inefficient and guilty of minor offenses, by discharging them from the army service immediately. This rule prevails partially now. Adj.-Gen. Ruggles' last report shows that the loss of enlisted men during the year included about 1.08 discharged continuous and the loss of enlisted men during the year included about 1.08 discharged continuous and the properties of the continuous and the properties of the continuous and the properties of the properties irials almost invariably result in the discharge from the service of the offender."

It was noted by the inspector of the department that the "number of men discharged by general court-martial indicates that incorrigible subjects are no longer tolerated in the ranks wing comment: "In view of the fact that, as reported by the inspector, the number lost to the service by purchase, and taking into consideration the great expense attending the convening of general court-martial, and the bringing of this class of offenders to justice it such that the service of the service o thee many more offenders will have to be taken care of by army posts that heretofore. It is not make the expense for the care of these men lighter, which causes the suggestion that it would be better to discharge as many of them as possible rather than to keep them in the guard house at the government's expense. Army officials say that it is not the primary purpose of the regulations to dismiss recruits that are offen sive, but rather to keep in the ranker than the number of worthless soldiers in imprisonment the fewer the vacancies for good recruits. There are certain requirements that would have to be observed in carrying out such a polley, for while general government expressly insists that men who enlist are bound to keep their contract, and desertion is a serious offense, there are necessarily corresponding to retain throughout their enlistments men who reasonably attend to their duty. Care has to be taken also not to endance the care in the case of the care in the care of the care in the care

The Frankfort Capital has this to say concerning the first woman convicted of murder in Kentucky for a long shile.

"The Sheriff of Breathlit county brought Mrs. Catherine McQuinn to the penitentary vesteraday to serve a life sentence for complicity in the murder of Dr. Rader. She is a big, rawboned woman with a face that indicates she might do any sort of a dark deed without faltering for a moment."

Winchester Democrat.

Over the library door of Gen. Buckner's home at Glen Lily hangs a pistol with which Aaron Burr killed Alexander Hamhome at Gien Lily hangs a pistol with which Aaron Burr killed Alexander Hamilton. It is a cumbersome weapon, more like a toy cannon than a pistol. The flist pan stands out the size of a silver quarter, and the wide mouthed barrel rests almost from end to end in a heavy wooden stock. To carry it in a modern pocket would be out of the question, for it is both too heavy and too long. The pistol was presented to Mrs. Buckner some years ago by Senator Blackburn. It was obtained by him from the Marshall family, who came into possession of it from Chief Justice Marshall, as well as can be remembered. Its histroy is well authenticated, and there is no doubt that it is the very weapon from which the fatal bullet sped which ended Hamilton's life and Burr's political career. Burr owned a brace of these pis tols, but the other has been lost sight of long ago.
